Bringing Wholeness to the Hopeless

“The Jesus Factor is the most important thing that makes Teen Challenge successful.”

- Chuck Colson

Our Story—More than a Rehab

It was on the streets of Brooklyn, NY in 1958 that a young country preacher felt God’s call and the ministry of Teen Challenge was birthed. David Wilkerson had seen an article in Life Magazine about a group of gang members on trial for murder and he could not ignore their brokenness. These men were addicted to violence, alcohol and drugs, but fundamentally they were addicted to sin. As David began to work with these men, he realized that a temporary change in their daily routine was not enough. There needed to be a complete transformation in their lifestyle and the best way to achieve this would be through a geographical shift. Thus began the search for a training center.

In June of 1962, David and his team concluded their search on a 225-acre farm in Rehrersburg, PA. As they looked over the fields and into town, they felt a strong sense of God’s presence. David took a twig and stuck it into the ground where they stood, claiming it for the Lord and the work that He would do here.

How do we define wholeness?

God: The Jesus Factor: We believe the essential key to recovery is a personal relationship with Jesus Christ and a foundation built on the Bible.

Family: Addiction is not an individual issue, but a family affliction. As a result a vital component of holistic recovery is healthy family dynamics.

Work: Every student can recognize their gifts as God’s calling in their lives. All God-honoring work is sacred.

Church: Becoming a part of a local church community is a critical component to establishing accountable relationships once a student has graduated from our program.

Community: Our students have the potential to recognize the great need within their local communities and become contributing members of society.
